Two incarcerated following burglary/attempted murder of 82-year-old Bay woman

BY D.C. HARVILL

Two men have been arrested for the burglary and attempted murder of an elderly Bay St. Louis woman Friday night.

Jamie W. Henry, 28, 605 Bienville Dr., Bay St. Louis and Joe Lewis Jushaway, 19, 507 Morris St., Waveland have both been charged with attempted murder of Lucille Guthrie, 82, and burglary of her residence, according to Bay Police Detective Shane Corr.

The subjects allegedly broke into Guthrie's home on Blue Meadow Road between 9:45 and 10:15 p.m., tried to strangle her and suffocate her with a pillow and then stole jewelry and cash, according to Corr.

Guthrie said she was sleeping and thought she was dreaming that someone was trying to strangle her. When she awoke someone placed a pillow over her face. She then began vomiting profusely and blacked out for an indeterminate time, Corr said.

The culprits were gone when Guthrie came to and called a friend who then contacted Bay Police. She was being transported to Hancock Medical Center, when Captain Robert Lee and Officer Gus Aime were dispatched to the scene at 11 p.m., according to Corr.

At least three rings and more than $400 are known to have been taken from Guthrie's home, according to Corr.

Two purses also are believed to have been taken. One of them was recovered on Blue Meadow Road shortly after the incident.

The other purse is thought to have been picked up Saturday night by someone driving in the 500 block of Main Street.

Police are requesting that whoever found the purse, handle it as little as possible and take it to the Bay St. Louis Police station.

Guthrie told police Jushaway had been to her home numerous times working as a handyman and allegedly had taken the $400 several weeks earlier.

"Mrs. Guthrie said she had approached Jushaway's mother about the money and that when he (Jushaway) was confronted he started crying and said he took it because he wanted to know what it was like to steal," Corr said.

According to Corr, Guthrie said Jushaway was repaying the money in $50 installments and had been to her home earlier in the day.

Jushaway was stopped by Aime for questioning at the corner of Dunbar Avenue and Highway 90 Saturday morning. He was taken into custody when he was found to be wearing three rings later identified by Guthrie as those taken from her residence.

According to Corr Jushaway claimed to have bought the rings from Henry.

They later were identified by Guthrie as those taken from her residence, according to Corr.

A warrant for Henry's arrest was issued by Municipal Judge George Lipscomb. He was arrested by Officer Ethel Mae Gladney at 6:05 a.m., Saturday when he walked into the police station inquiring about his brother whom he thought had been arrested, Corr said.

"She (Guthrie) never saw them because it was dark and they put the pillow over her face when she woke up, but we have footprints, fingerprints and the three rings taken from her house," Corr said.

Henry and Jushaway are incarcerated in Hancock Justice Facility without bond until Guthrie is released from the hospital, where she is reported to be in stable condition. Upon her release their bonds will be set at $100,000 each, Corr said.

Bay school board moving on new auditorium plans

BY DENA BISNETTE

In response to suggestions from a committee and the public, the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District is moving toward construction on a new plan for a proposed auditorium at Bay Senior High School.

The board voted 4-1 in a special meeting Thursday to authorize architect Fred Wagner to prepare production drawings from preliminaries provided after the board agreed to change its plans last month.

The original auditorium plans called for a building similar to a college lecture hall, with a small stage as compared to an auditorium for theatrical productions. There were no backstage working or dressing areas and the structure was designed with a flat floor.

The new plan calls for a full-sized stage in the 11,820-square-foot facility with some backstage and wing work-space and backstage dressing rooms with restrooms. The building will back up to the new band hall to allow that facility to be used as additional dressing rooms.

The floor is designed to slant toward the stage as in traditional theatres and will have about 600 permanent seats. There will also be restrooms accessible to the public from the lobby.

The structure will also be equipped with accoustical panels, catwalks, a platform and other elements of a traditional theatre.

Completion is expected in October 1990, Board President Charles Benvenuti stated. The $1.35 million fine arts buildings and fixtures will fall into the budget left for the building program.

Thursday's meeting was attended by a local dancing teacher and several people active in community theatre. Among those who addressed the board were dance teacher Sha-

Vandalism victim's co-workers offering reward for information

BY DENA BISNETTE

A group of G.E. Plastics employees is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of whoever vandalized a co-worker's home Tuesday morning.

One of the employees said the group has pledged money to assist the co-worker and her husband in hopes that someone in the community may have witnessed something that can lead authorities to the vandal or vandals.

"We don't understand what's going on, but we know it's very hard on both of them," the employee stated.

Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn said the vandalism, which occurred at the couple's Espana Park Subdivision home while both residents were at work, was not a typical vandalism case.

Vandalisms generally involve random destruction of property, but Dorn said this case does not fit that pattern and is not believed related to other recent vandalism incidents.

"She has been having a lot of daytime problems, including threatening phone calls and a note stuck to her front door with a knife," he stated.

The caller always threatened to kill the woman, and the note included the message, "You are dead."

Dorn said the situation has been going on for "two or three weeks," and credited an alert neighbor with stopping the vandal from doing more damage.

He said the vandalism probably was committed by only one person, who entered the house through a window and the replaced the screen from the inside.

The vandal apparently fled when the neighbor approached the house for a closer look.

"There was an iron left on the carpet. It was turned on, but the carpet wasn't scorched yet when we got got there," the chief explained. "The water had been turned on in the bathtub but it hadn't overflowed yet."

He said the vandalism indicated that the woman was the target because only her belongings were touched.

"He painted over a lot of the pictures but he only did ones that had her in them," Dorn added. "He only messed up her bathroom. He didn't touch the other one."

The vandal also went through the woman's closet and dresser, scattering her clothing and other belongings through the house.

Dorn said estimates on the damage are not yet available, but the house does not appear to have been burglarized.

The investigation is continuing with Investigator Sandra Henley in charge. Anyone who wishes to provide information about the incidents may call the Waveland Police Department at 467-3669 or Hancock County Sheriff's Office at 467-5101.

Bay-Waveland schools may continue without assistant superintendent

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland

School District will be without an assistant superintendent of education when school opens for the 1989-90 term.

The district has been without an assistant superintendent since Robert Magee was promoted from that position to superintendent of education several weeks ago.

Board President Charles Benvenuti said the board has made no formal decision not to fill the job.

"It's up to Mr. Magee to work with the board to decide if we need one," the board president stated.

If Magee and the board members do not feel the post needs to be filled this year, the board will consider what to do about it next year at some point ranging from January to March, when many of the decisions regarding administrative personnel for the coming year must be made.

Filling the slot for 1989-90 is possible because the budget does include the $50,000 salary and about $5,000 to $7,500 in benefits for an assistant superintendent, Benvenuti added.

ON PATROL

CAR FOUND

A car found in the Jourdan River Friday morning has not been reported stolen, but authorities are trying to trace the owner.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said two Picayune residents spotted bubbles indicating the position of the submerged vehicle at about 7 a.m.

The two men, James Lee and Neal Gibson, were preparing to use the Comanche Street boat launch in Jourdan River Shores.

Peterson said the car, a 1986 Ford Taurus, has a Louisiana registration in the name of a Marrero resident.

However, the National Crime Information Computer indicated that the car had not been reported stolen.

Peterson said his department was still attempting to notify the owner Friday to find out if the car could have been stolen without his knowledge.

Free concert-in-the-park to feature Cajun music

BY D.C. HARVILL

City Hall Park in Bay St. Louis will be filled with the sounds of Cajun and country music Saturday evening when the band Night Travelers performs in a free concert.

The concert, sponsored by the Bay Business Association, begins at 7 p.m. Food will be served starting at 6 p.m., including fried fish, boiled potatoes and corn-on-the-cob. Beverages will also be available.

"We want people to dress comfortably like they normally would for a concert in the park, but we would like for them to start bringing their card tables, linen table cloths, candelabras and china and have an elegant meal in the park. It would be a nice touch," association spokesman Ruth Thompson said.

Free concerts in the park have become a regular event. Three to four have been held annually since their inception by the association two years ago.

Styles of music featured at the concerts have ranged from rhythm and blues to big band. Saturday's concert will be the second time Cajun music has been featured.

The first Cajun concert was among the most popular of the series, according to the sponsors.

BUSINESS

BellSouth reports second quarter earnings

BellSouth Corporation (BLS) reported second quarter earnings of $418 million, compared to last year's second quarter earnings of $396 million. Quarterly earnings per share were $87 versus $83 a year ago.

Second quarter operating revenues were $3.5 billion, compared to $3.4 billion second quarter last year. Expenses for the second quarter were $2.7 billion, compared to $2.6 billion for the same period last year.

"The increased revenues resulted from growth in both access lines and other areas of the business," said John L. Clendenin, BellSouth chairman and chief executive officer.

"However, revenue growth has been offset somewhat by rate reductions not in effect this time last year. Some of these rate reductions resulted from various state regulatory actions designed to help BellSouth respond positively to the needs and demands of an increasingly competitive market."

In addition, Clendenin cited continuing cost control efforts for holding the increase in expenses over the same period last year to 2.7 percent.

"Clearly, our people have done and continue to do a superb job in expense control," he said.

During the second quarter BellSouth added 103,000 new access lines. Currently the corporation's telephone operating companies, Southern Bell and South Central Bell, serve more than 16.7 million access lines.

BellSouth's purchase of Mobile Communications Corporation of America (MCCA) was completed during the second quarter, but did not have a significant impact on BellSouth's earnings.

At the end of the second quarter there were approximately 481 million BellSouth shares outstanding in 1.5 million shareholder accounts.

BellSouth is an international telecommunications holding company comprised of two operating telephone companies, Southern Bell and South Central Bell, which serve 70 percent of the population in nine southeastern states; BellSouth Services, which performs staff and planning functions for the two operating companies; and BellSouth Enterprises, which manages the corporation's non-regulated activities throughout the United States and internationally.

Peters profiles managerial excellence

Tim Peters is a guru to American business. He is a best-selling author and expert on the power of the American consumer. Now, he puts his finger on the pulse of public sector organizations to examine how they can improve across the United States are leading a revolution in American managerial excellence.

His one-hour ETV special does more than destroy the myth that by definition public sector management must be poor. Its celebration of successes suggests a blueprint for excellence in both American public and private sector organizations. "Excellence in the Public Sector with Tim Peters" can be seen at 10 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 22 on Mississippi ETV, and again at 3 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 27.

Applying much of the tough-minded material found in his books, Peters studies and quantifies the differences an enlightened, modern management style has made at: the Naval Aviation Depot in Alameda, Calif.; the Department of Juvenile Justice in New York City; the city of Phoenix, Ariz.; the National Theatre Workshop of the Handicapped in New York City; and the Ochoco National Forest in Oregon.

Peters researched more than 100 public sector organizations before selecting the five featured in the program. Criteria used in the evaluation included: sound management, excellence throughout the organization, risk-taking and customer service.

MARIE SUMMERS

Summers' art shown at Waveland Library

The Waveland Public Library is hosting an exhibit of oil paintings by Marie Summers through Aug. 31.

Summers, the daughter of Edna and Willie Johnson and the late Alonzo Summers is a Waveland resident and a senior at Bay Senior High School. She has won numerous local awards and enjoys painting as a way of relaxing.

Painting is a challenge to Summers and provides a sense of accomplishment as each work is finished.

For the past five years Summers has been a student of Carl Baldenhofer, a well known artist from Waveland. She credits him for helping to develop her artistic talent.

For more information, contact the Waveland Public Library at 467-9240 during regular business hours.

Three local students are MSU graduates

Approximately 800 Mississippi State University students are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of the 1989 summer term.

The university holds only one graduation exercise each year at the end of the spring semester. Commencement exercises for the 1989 summer term and fall semester and the 1990 spring semester will be May 12 at Humphrey Coliseum.

The summer term concludes Aug. 15.

Students completing requirements for undergraduate degrees with exceptional scholastic averages and with a minimum of one-half the total required hours for degrees taken at MSU are graduated with honors. The levels of recognition are recorded on the students' diplomas and permanent records.

August graduates include Laura Leigh Jackson, master of science; Craig Paul Orgeron, bachelor of business administration; and Lisa Ann Tullis, bachelor of science.

Newspapers are first choice of Mississippi consumers

Before they buy, most Mississippi shoppers read.

Six of 10 Mississippi consumers say they read newspaper ads when they want information about where to spend their money, a statewide survey has found.

The survey of 1,211 randomly selected Mississippians was conducted for the Mississippi Press Association, a trade organization representing the state's daily and non-daily newspapers.

In the survey, respondents were asked where they are most likely to turn for information about where to shop. Newspapers were the first choice of 63.3 percent, followed by free circulation shippers (8.1 percent), television (7.1 percent) and radio (3.4 percent).

Specifically, shoppers say they read newspaper ads when they want information about the cost and availability of products.

Asked if they regularly read a local, community newspaper, 76.5 percent stated they did. The typical daily reader reads 5.3 issues per week. The typical weekly reader reads 3.7 issues per month.

The telephone survey was conducted in May 1989 by Consumer Data Service (CDS) of Oklahoma City, and the Communications Research Center at the University of Oklahoma.

The survey's margin of error was plus or minus 3 percent.

Survey participants were asked how often, when in the market for a specific product, do they read specific types of advertising in newspapers. The percentage of respondents who said they "usually" or "sometimes" read the following ad categories are:

—Grocery ads (74.2 percent)

—Discount or department store ads (78.4 percent)

—Clothing store ads (78.4 percent)

—Home appliance ads (57.2 percent)

—Furniture ads (55.2 percent)

—Hardware and lumber store ads (45.4 percent)

—Automobile ads (48.4 percent)

—Bank and savings and loan ads (45.3 percent)

—Medical service ads (54.5 percent)

—Insurance ads (37.6 percent)

—Restaurant ads (59.8 percent)

Classified advertising draws a large readership of Mississippians with 76 percent of the respondents saying that they "usually" or "sometimes" read classified ads in newspapers.

Asked how they prefer to receive advertising circulars, 38.4 percent chose newspapers, while 23 percent said through the mail.

The survey found that 64.1 percent said they turn to newspapers for grocery advertisements while 6.9 percent turn to a shopper and only 4.5 percent rely on direct mail for grocery ads.

Discount coupons are often carried in newspapers and Mississippians appear to take advantage of the discount incentives offered by manufacturers and retailers.

More than 65.7 percent said they "usually" or "sometimes" use coupons when purchasing household items or food products. When asked where they get most of the coupons used, 69 percent said from the newspaper. Only 13.7 percent said from direct mail.

For this survey, one can be 95 percent confident that a result from the sample is not more than 3 percent different from that of the entire population of adult Mississippi citizens. All probability samples contain some sampling error—the extent to which respondents' views differ from the views held by the entire population from which the sample was drawn.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This afternoon at 6 p.m. there will be a ceremony commemorating the 20th anniversary of Hurricane Camille at the corner of Ulman Avenue and Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis.

Those of us who survived that great storm have very much to be thankful for as many had narrow escapes.

When a hurricane is threatening now, many folks flee the area because they remember the nightmare of Camille 20 years ago.

Camille brings back horror stories to many of us who weathered the strongest hurricane to ever strike the United States.

Many who were here during the 1969 storm are no longer with us. Some were killed by the destructive winds, tidal surge, or one of the numerous tornados spawned by the massive hurricane, while others have relocated to other areas or have since died.

Those still in the area have stories of all types to tell, some are more horrible than others.

I hope everyone will attend the commemoration sponsored by a group of local ministers who, along with several political leaders are scheduled to speak at the service.

The Bay-Waveland Jaycees will provide refreshments.

Don't forget the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Chamber Pot Monday from noon to 2 p.m.

It will be an opportunity to have a good plate of red beans and rice for only $2 and to chat with business friends.

Don't forget to tell the Hancock County Civic Center that you're here.

Let's keep the good things going.

Hancock County will take up residence in just about any place, and that is why it is protected from the elements.

Hancock County is a favorite place for bees to establish colonies as well as the walls of homes and buildings.

There was even a hive of bees removed from the walls of the Hancock County Elementary School.

There was an open hive of bees in the wall of the Hancock County First Baptist Church and another in a large tree across from my office.

I can even recall recently reading in the Bible where Sampson took honey from a hive of bees in the carcass of a lion he slew.

Isn't amazing how such a small animal can take the honey from the flowers and manufacture something as sweet as honey?

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has received and read repair bids for 132 miles of roads.

The roads need resurfacing, overlay and other types of repairs to roads in the five districts of the county.

There are many roads in need of repairs and we are glad to have them begun before bad weather sets in.

Bomb hoax

Hancock County officers make a report on a bomb hoax found on the grounds of the I-10 Welcome Center on Wednesday. Among the officers responding were from right, Criminal Investigator Nathan Hoda and deputies Robert Nacaise and D.J. Cuevas. The device was dismantled by Lt. Robert Bailey from Gulfport's police department and Bill Scarborough of the Harrison County sheriff's department. The device was found by Welcome Center Guard Earl Thornton. After dismantling, Bailey said the device was a hoax, (insert), but was well put together, containing buttons, several lights and a battery and could have been real. Mississippi State Troopers and the sheriff's deputies closed the Welcome Center for about two hours. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mahus

Mississippians must rise to challenge of education

In June, the high school graduating class of 2001 completed the kindergarten. By the time these students leave school, vast changes will have occurred in Mississippi, the nation and the world.

Will Mississippi's children be ready? Will these children - and others who are already in our education system - be prepared to face the enormous challenges of an increasingly complicated and technological world?

There is only one answer to this question. They must be ready. It is their right to be ready. And, it is our duty to see that they are ready.

There are those who would rather wait for some other time to make significant improvements in Mississippi's education system. "Let's do it later, we don't have time to deal with that issue now," some suggest.

To those persons I ask, "How many more Mississippi children - and adults - can we afford to sacrifice to a lifetime of unemployment of low-skill, low-paying jobs? How many more children can we let slide by?

The answer is clear: We cannot wait. The next century is only about 10 years away, and Mississippi's future is at stake.

This week I will release a series of goals for education in Mississippi. These goals - achieved by the year 2001 - will give Mississippi a world-class system of education by the turn of the century.

In October, I will make specific recommendations for action based on these goals for later consideration by the Legislature.

The goals I will announce this month are not a set of objectives from the political leaders of Mississippi to the people. Instead they are a set of demands from the people to the political leaders of the state of Mississippi.

For the past four months, Mississippians interested in education improvement have given more than 400 speeches throughout Mississippi. Leadership meetings have been held across the state to find out what business and community leaders think about education improvement.

More than 200 personal interviews with opinion leaders have been conducted in every region of Mississippi. And, thousands of questionnaires have been completed by citizens.

These people recognize that Mississippi must do something now - not just for the class of 2001, but for all present and future generations of Mississippi students.

They recognize that it is easy not to change, and it is much harder to make bold improvements in education. They are up to the challenge. Now it is up to the political leadership.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Alternative site suggested for redfish production

Dear Editor,

A matter of great concern to me and many others in our area is the proposed destruction of a unique, irreplaceable marsh peninsula locally known as Russ' Island.

The island was recently purchased by Bob Hunt who plans to construct and operate a redfish production facility.

Larry Lewis, the person in charge of the wetlands division of the Bureau of Marine Resources told me in a telephone conversation that the state had considered purchasing the Beckendorf property (which includes Russ' Island). Mr. Lewis surveyed the area, and the state did not buy the land. Shortly thereafter Mr. Hunt bought the property.

Lewis told me that an environmental impact study would not be conducted because the digging of ponds on the peninsula would not directly affect the estuarine system.

Diane Hunt (Bob Hunt's wife) who is in charge of issuing permits for wetland digging, draining, etc., who also works for the BMR, has determined that no permits are necessary for Mr. Hunt to destroy the watershed system and hardwood forest which roots help hold the island together and buffer the effects of tidal surge from hurricanes.

The watershed supplies an enormous amount of naturally occurring nutrients delivered by fresh water run-off from the island to several very productive lagoons (shrimp and crab nurseries).

Organic nutrients supplied by the vegetation on the island (grass, legumes and hardwoods) and washed into the delicate estuarine system by the run-off are essential to the vitality of the eco-system as a whole.

An interruption of this natural cycle will very probably destroy the productivity of this delicately balanced estuarine system...including such commercially important species as shrimp and crabs, and higher on the food chain, such game species as red fish, speckled trout and flounder (also of commercial importance).

The number of jobs created would certainly be far lower than 300 which Mr. Hunt suggested, in fact, if Mr. Hunt utilizes modern technology, as he must, all feeders will be automatic, water controls will be computerized and processing plants will be extremely efficient. Labor cost will most certainly be held to a bare minimum.

I do not wish to stifle progress; any additional jobs for the citizens of Hancock County would be a blessing, however there are alternative, far less destructive routes which Mr. Hunt could pursue.

The Port Bienville industrial facility has been set aside for such projects. Draining massive amounts of fresh water into the Pearl River system would have very little effect, to Bayou Cad- dy it could be devastating.

Road and rail systems are already in place at the Port and Harbor facility. A road system able to handle very heavy equipment would have to be developed on the Russ' Island site, the cost would be great.

Please contact your county supervisor if you think an alternative site could be offered to Mr. Hunt in an effort to persuade him to not destroy a part of our environment which could never be replaced. We are residents here, Mr. Hunt is not.

There are Native American historical treasures scattered across the entire area. For this reason alone the property should be preserved for our children and their children. The island is also an extremely important staging area for migrating birds, and wintering ground for many others.

Could Mr. Hunt be unselfish enough to trade his newly acquired property for an equal or greater area at Port Bienville? Or is he hoping for the collapse of the natural fishery system which would greatly enhance the value of his product?

As a resident of our rapidly shrinking planet and a life-long student of our already-bleeding environment, I urge you, my fellow citizens, to strongly suggest to your supervisors and to Mr. Hunt to alter his proposed location and save a great deal of money and a priceless part of the earth.

Sincerely,
Bob Davis

FROM THE SENATE

By U.S. Senator Trent Lott

Defense Bill: Good for Mississippi Bad for America

While the defense bill, in its current form, is good for Mississippi, I believe it spells trouble for our nation's national security.

Military projects in Forrest, Hattiesburg, Meridian, Columbus, Pascagoula and Jackson survived the budget cuts, but other necessary projects and weapons systems did not.

The Senate passed a bill aimed at keeping America strong and safe. The House, on the other hand, passed a bill that could leave us at great risk. These serious differences will have to be worked out in conference.

While the $295 billion Senate version leaves strategic programs like Strategic Defense Initiative and the B-2 bomber intact, the House version guts many of our necessary weapons systems. House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, a respected authority in the defense area, termed the house proposal "a Michael Dukakis defense budget." Some believe it was Dukakis' views on defense that led to his defeat in last year's presidential election.

The Senate bill endorses both mobile-missile plans, while the House stripped $502 million from the MX missile and eliminated all $100 million of the Midgetman. While one House aide called it "a struggle between two missiles nobody likes," most everyone agrees that at least one of them is necessary. Eliminating both would be irresponsible, not to mention downright dangerous.

The Senate did chop $400 million from the $4.9 billion request for S.D.I. and $300 million from the $4.7 billion proposal for the B-2 stealth bomber. But those actions are modest when compared to the "chopping block" approach used by the House.

It slashed $1.8 billion from the S.D.I. request and limited production of the B-2 bomber to two planes next year and two the year after that—half of what was being asked for by the administration.

In two areas where the administration wanted to reduce funding, the House, again, took its own course. Wings on the V-22 Osprey vertical-lift transport plane and the F-14 fighter were restored, despite White House efforts to clip them. Both of these weapons have merit and in a different budgetary environment, would probably be supported by most members of Congress.

But monetary constraints are forcing us to scale back in all areas of the budget. And that means that some programs, which would otherwise be supported, are being put on hold, trimmed or cancelled altogether.

Food and appearance are America's two obsessions

A few years ago, major news media called America's increased focus on physical fitness a fad.

Is it a fad? Or should people have been paying more attention to their bodies all along? I don't think fitness is a fad. I think it's a reaction, and not just a reaction to a sedentary lifestyle.

It's a reaction to the two Great American Obsessions: food and appearance.

I'm quite familiar with the food obsession. If someone had asked me to list my hobbies when I first moved to the Gulf Coast, trying new restaurants would have topped the list. I just couldn't get over all the great new foods I found.

My husband once pointed out to me that I grew up in a family obsessed with food. What to eat was a major conversation topic in that household.

What tipped Joe off, however, was the collection of wedding pictures on the wall. Most people choose a portrait-type shot of the bride and groom, but not my mom. Every photo she displays has the cake in it.

Now that I think about it, I do have quite a few old kitchen pictures. Somebody is either preparing food, laying out a holiday meal or has food in the background.

Maybe that's why it was such a shock to me and my siblings when my parents suddenly became health-conscious two years ago and began stocking nothing but rabbit food in the fridge. Maybe that's why my sister kept encouraging Mom to buy junk food.

I've had long, terribly interesting conversations about food with friends who used to be in the restaurant business, and have heard people get just as involved in those discussions as they would have if we had been talking about politics or religion.

With some people, I'm convinced that food is a religion. Some aren't quite ready to convert, like the ones in my office. Someone is always either eating or dieting.

Speaking of diets, there's always the other Great American Obsession—appearance. I know so many people who are mortally afraid to look old or fat.

At one time, the only males I ever heard complain about their weight were athletes preparing for the big game.

These days, most men I talk to seem afraid of two appearance factors, thinning hair and fat. They may not be able to do much for the hair, so they fight the fat.

One lady I met at the walking track near Hancock Medical Center told me she found it awfully funny that most of the men she met there came after 10 p.m., as if they were afraid to be seen.

Women are more vocal about the obsession with appearance, but there are more ways to hide problems. Skillfully applied make-up, including hair dye, makes most women look younger, and the cut of the clothes does a lot to hide a few pounds, more or less.

I laugh a lot about the ones who tell me they have to buy size 12s instead of 10s because the clothes made overseas and the designer clothes are so much smaller, when I know the only 10 they can wear will be on their feet.

I laugh because they must come from families like mine, where food is a lot more than just nutrition.

What should be funny about many of these families is that it's okay to be obsessed with food, but it's a major sin to gain a few pounds.

If it's so wrong, how come the insurance company tables that show how much people should weigh in proportion to their height keeps allowing more pounds to the inch?

At least it gives us something to talk about, particularly in a group of women. There are all kinds of diets available, some good, some bad and some just plain wacky, so you never run out of conversation.

The good part of this is that the better diet plans help the people who stick with them. The bad part is that most people won't stick to the program, then blame not losing weight on the type of diet they tried. Some of these people change diets more often than I change my socks.

Being overweight isn't exactly healthy, but I think it's an even worse threat to a person when he lives in a society that gives him two conflicting messages: Eat, because it's a major ership of Mississippi to take up that challenge.

The goals will chart the course that Mississippi needs to take. The challenge over the coming months will be to find ways to:

Let teachers teach and free them up from bureaucracy; make schools accountable for the students they turn out; reward excellence in teaching; use innovation and technology in our schools; increase the involvements of parents and the business community in schools; and make sure students are prepared to learn when they enter school and that they are qualified when they graduate.

Mississippians showed that they could make a difference in education when the Education Reform Act of 1982 was passed. Now it is time to take the next giant step and build on that legacy. It is time to make sure the Mississippi class of 2001 is truly world class.

Undoubtedly, we are entering a unique era in history; a period in which superpowers like the Soviet Union are spending as much time and effort in the economic arena as they are in the area of defense. But our intelligence information doesn't reveal that the Soviets are spending less on tanks and planes.

While we can and should talk about reassessing our national security needs it is essential that we remain militarily strong and prepared for any change in current trends.

Today's kitten is tomorrow's lion. We have to look no further than China.

For years, we in the Congress have asked the Department of Defense to make the tough choices, to prioritize our weapons systems, and to balance our needs with our wants. Secretary of Defense Richard Cheney did that, but Congress, at least the House side, has chosen to re-shuffle the deck. The legislative branch does two things well; spend money and micromanage. In my opinion, it should do less of both.

WLOX to air documentary on Camille's devastation

On Aug. 17 at 7 p.m., WLOX-TV 13 will broadcast a one-hour special "Steps to Nowhere." This documentary on Hurricane Camille will provide viewers with vivid personal accounts of what happened on the evening of Camille.

The program will contain interviews with survivors of the devastating hurricane, including Mary Anne Gerlach, the only survivor of the infamous hurricane party at the Richlieu Apartments in Pass Christian.

The special will also introduce viewers to just some of the people who performed heroic deeds in the height of the storm, and will contain film footage that will be unfamiliar to most Coastians due to the unavailability of electrical power after the storm.

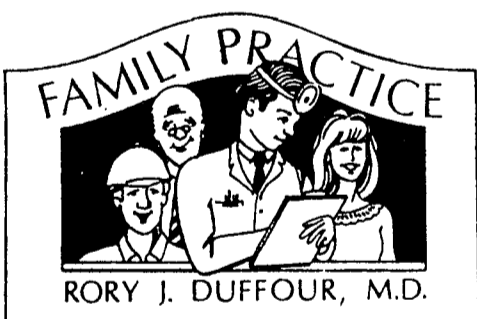

WLOX is proud to air this locally produced documentary that will prove to be an insightful, emotional, psychological and philosophical look into the effects of Hurricane Camille.

'An Agenda For Change' is mandated for growth

By William F. Winter
Governor of Mississippi
1980-1984

Note: The following article is financially assisted by the National Endowment for the Humanities through a grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and do not necessarily represent the views of these organizations.

There is an old saw that the only constant in our lives is change. For a generation or so many of us white Mississippians tried to refute that maxim. During the massive resistance in the decades of the 1950s and 60s, some tried to stop the clock. For 20 years the state's leadership, with an exception here and there, went into an escape from reality with results not unlike those which befell an earlier day Rip Van Winkle.

Upon awakening from the unreality that rejected virtually all change whether related to race or not, we found that many of our sister states had used those years to move far ahead of us. States like the Carolinas, Georgia and Virginia established a lead in international trade, economic development and educational progress that left us far behind, and now attempting to make up lost ground.

In the early 1950s, for example, there was little difference in the per capita income of Mississippi and South Carolina. Mississippi had a larger population. Today, not only has South Carolina greatly expanded its per capita income, it has had a population growth rate three times that of Mississippi. Why, we ask, has this happened?

Senator Fritz Hollings of South Carolina, who also served as governor of that state from 1959 to 1963, helps supply the answer: "While some of you were standing in the schoolhouse door at Ole Miss, we were going on trade missions to Western Europe and bringing major outside investment to South Carolina." It was at that same time that Governor Terry Sanford was building the Research Triangle in North Carolina.

During that period in our state any suggestion of change was measured in terms of its impact on the racial status quo. We repeatedly rejected federal aid for all manner of much-needed projects lest it lead to a breach in our wall of segregation.

We turned down funding for education, urban redevelopment, airports, college dormitories, health care, recreational facilities and other vital projects in the name of segregation, only to see those funds go to build up the economies of other states.

Had it not been for the strong insistence of Governor Coleman, we would have rejected the new Veterans Administration hospital in Jackson. During these years, we would not even let our conference-champion athletic teams compete for national titles.

Any suggestion that we reconsider some of those policies was often met with the brusque response that if we didn't like it here we could leave. As a matter of fact, several hundred thousand of some of our best citizens, white and black, did leave during those troubled years. In the decade of the 1950s, Mississippi actually had a net loss in population despite one of the highest birth rates in the nation.

It was a tragic refusal to change that brought about these results. And now we are playing catch-up. Now we are having to make up for the years that the locusts have eaten. Now we are having to telescope into a much shorter time frame basic changes that should have been initiated earlier. In the words of the report of the Commission on the Future of the South, we are "halfway home and a long way to go."

Our task now is to set priorities in terms of what needs to be changed. There is no merit in making change merely for the sake of change. Much about our culture needs to be preserved. There is a gentility and courtesy that equates with the so-called Southern way of life. We must not lose that.

We must retain our sense of family and our sense of place. We must preserve historic and familiar sites that remind us of where we came from. We must not let change ravage our natural beauty and overwhelm our still largely unspoiled cities and towns with mindless, tasteless development.

We must with intelligence and sensitivity decide what needs changing and what needs preserving and then with a commitment to both the future and the past embrace constructive change at the same time that we protect the best of our heritage.

Establishing a legitimate agenda for change is now our foremost and most challenging task. It is obviously difficult to agree on the specifics. It should, however, be possible and even fairly simple to arrive at a general consensus.

First, there must be a change in our strategy of development. We must undertake a fundamentally different approach that emphasizes increased investment in human capital—not just in physical infrastructure. We have never put a high enough priority on human resource development in its various aspects but most notably in education. That must change.

We have not thought enough about our relationship to the rest of the nation and the rest of the world. We have not been concerned enough with positioning ourselves for global competition. That must change.

We have not recognized fully the value of our natural resources—land, water, energy, forest. We have often permitted these to be exploited for quick profits. That must change.

We have taken for granted the process by which we govern ourselves. We have been slow to recognize the burden of outdated systems and an obsolete state constitution. We have let concern over the protection of political turf blind us to the deficiencies of a horse and buggy way of governing. That must change.

As far as we have come in human relations, we still have a long way to go. Too many of us in the so-called establishment still lack a sensitivity to those who are struggling against the age-old problems of ignorance, poverty and prejudice. Mississippi has a higher percentage of its people in poverty than any other state. That must change.

It is a paradox that our state has produced a disproportionately larger number of gifted writers, artists, singers and musicians than any other Deep South state, and yet we put a very low priority on support for education in the arts. That must change.

Finally, we must give an increased sense of mission and purpose to our young people that will encourage them to invest their talent in Mississippi and that will reassure them that if they do, they will be rewarded not only financially but, more importantly, with the satisfaction of helping their state get "all the way home." This attitude was reflected in the response of one of my students in the Eudora Welty Southern Studies class at Millsaps College this spring as he answered one of my final examination questions about what would most influence where he would choose to live. He wrote as follows:

I once thought that going to school out-of-state and living in a big city was a must. I used to believe Mississippi was just where I grew up so that I could move on. These days, I think that's beginning to change. Mississippi would be a challenge. You can think of it as a new frontier to be pioneered. All of the things I want in life could be found here and perhaps they will be if things continue to change. And now I realize I can be a part of that change.

When all is said and done, this may be the most significant change of all—the recognition that here is an old environment marked by tradition and slowness to change are the dynamic new elements for the building of a more just, compassionate and productive society.

GORDON HERRON AND JOEY BREAU

Herron, Breaux attend FBF safety seminar

Gordon Herron and Joey Breaux of Hancock County attended the Youth Safety Seminar sponsored by the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation Safety Department July 31-Aug. 3 at Roosevelt State Park in Morton.

The purpose of this seminar is to educate young people about safety habits. Many people are killed or seriously injured each year in accidents that could have been avoided if basic safety precautions had been taken.

Mike Blankenship, Bob Hickley and John Hubbard of the Farm Bureau Safety Department were on hand all week to teach safety classes that included ATV safety, CPR, defensive driving, tractor and machinery safety, first aid and many more. The Mississippi Highway Patrol also participated in teaching the defensive driving course.

The students' free time was filled with recreational activities such as swimming, volleyball and softball.

The Youth Safety Seminar is a blend of good, clean fun and highly informative safety classes. For more information on next year's seminars, contact your county Farm Bureau office.

Mission to Brazil

Church group goes a long way to gain new perspective

BY D.C. HARVILL

A group of ladies from a Bay St. Louis church recently returned from a two-week mission trip to Brazil with a renewed appreciation of life in the United States and a better understanding of the sacrifices made by professional missionaries.

The ladies, from First Baptist Church, included Judy Caplinger of Kiln and her 16-year-old daughter Dena; Roberta Harvill, Belinda Pearce and Darlene Underwood, all of Waveland.

The group spent the two weeks in northern Brazil teaching bible school for the children of missionaries stationed in the area.

First Baptist is actively involved in lay mission work and sends members of its congregation to work in countries around the world, Underwood said.

The great thing about getting to go with a church-sponsored visit was I never would have gotten to Brazil otherwise, especially the area we were in," she said.

The occasion for the bible school was an annual meeting of the Northern Brazil Mission held on Isla de Itamarca, an island just offshore from the city of Recife.

"It was an experience of a lifetime. It's a shame everyone can't have the experience at least once. It showed us how the other half of the world lives and made us aware of the things we take for granted," Harvill said.

Approximately 10 percent of the population owns 80 percent of the property in northern Brazil, she said.

"The people who don't own property have to live anywhere they can. Supposedly its not uncommon for people to be killed for living on someone else's land," Harvill added.

equator, it was winter while the group was there, but the temperature was in the 70s since it is in the tropics.

The area may be impoverished but it is very beautiful, with numerous palm trees, broad, white beaches, the ladies said.

"There were little shacks on the sides of the hills, it was squalid but each one had a little light—it was beautiful at night," Underwood said.

The group found their greatest source of enrichment from their experience with the missionaries, some of whom had spent their entire lives living outside of America helping others.

"Once you know a missionary personally, by name, you realize what they give up, what the sacrifice, so they can help others understand what it means to be Christian," Harvill said.

The life of a professional missionary is difficult if for no other reason than they have no real home, the ladies said.

"One of them told me 'We are neither fish nor fowl. When we go home (to the U.S.) we aren't a part of that and as long as we live here we aren't really a part of this because we aren't Brazilian,'" Caplinger said.

Dena Caplinger, the first youth allowed to participate in one of the church-sponsored mission trips, said she was most impressed with the missionaries' children.

Only 50 percent of the two million people who live in the Recife area have indoor bathrooms, according to Underwood.

"They (the missionaries) told us the inflation rate is 24 percent and the average family lives on $30 per month. It is pitiful to see how the common people live—we don't have poverty, not on that scale.

"It gives you a whole new perspective on things. When you come back, you appreciate what you have and you appreciate your own family," Underwood said.

Caplinger, a nurse, said medical practices in the area were of special interest to her.

"They have no emergency system, if you are in a traffic accident it is just whoever gets there first with an old pickup. If you're not lucky enough to die in the accident, you probably will be bounced to death in the bed of the truck on the bumpy roads to the hospital. I heard that some of the operating rooms are open-air," Caplinger said.

"I was told that 65 percent of the people operated on get infections," Underwood said.

"They can buy any kind of medication over the counter—even things we have to get pre-

"There are an estimated 30 million children living on the streets. They have an enormous problem," Underwood said.

"The kids were great. They were so bilingual, so adapted to two different cultures. With the problems most teenagers have now it is amazing they can go into another culture and get along. But they are so well rounded they can cope with anything," Dena said.

She said she made good friends while in Brazil and wishes to visit again some day.

"I'm contemplating becoming a missionary, a bit, but I'm only 16," she said.

Judy Caplinger said the thing that impressed her about the children that they only occasionally get to travel to the U.S. but they are more aware of what is happening in America than most teens who live in the States.

"It was really great introspection and I hope God doesn't call me to go, I could live like those missionaries do," Caplinger said.

The ladies pointed out that southern Brazil is more affluent than the region they were in, though they did not get to travel their.

Money is a common problem for a family, regardless of income, age or education of its family members. Sometimes a lack of income to meet basic needs causes the money hassle. But more often, inadequate communication about money is the root of financial problems.

When family members have different values and attitudes toward spending and saving money, or when families strive for unrealistic goals, there is potential conflict. When family members do not "talk things out," even the most workable spending plan may face ruin. Communication among family members is not always the easiest thing to do, but it is important if you want to get the most satisfaction from financial resources. Generally, the more open the communication about family finances, the better the quality of those decisions.

Preventing and overcoming money problems takes honest, open communication. It also takes time and effort. Be willing to arrange a specific time when all family members can talk about money. Meet on a regular basis instead of waiting until problems occur.

There are several ways to increase the quality of communication about money matters in your family.

First, recognize that whoever earns the money does not also earn the right to dictate how it should be spent. Family members, including children old enough to understand, need to make decisions about money as a team.

Allow everyone to have input in financial decisions. Family members will be more satisfied with decisions if they helped to make them.

Clearly identify the issue at hand. Do not drag other points into the discussion that do not address the problem, concern or dissatisfaction. Is the problem one of spending too much money, spending it at the wrong time or spending it on something you consider unnecessary or unimportant?

Let each family member freely state his or her wants, needs and personal feelings. Avoid judging or criticizing others. Encourage communication beginning with "I think" and "I feel." Talk about the present. Avoid phrases such as "you always" and "you never."

Listen carefully to the other person. Respond to statements by others with some indication that you understand. Or, ask questions until you do understand.

Be willing to negotiate for a realistic settlement of differences. In many cases, family members must compromise. Thoroughly discussing an idea may help avoid misunderstandings.

CEHS announces faculty; school to celebrate 40 years

Coast Episcopal High School will open its doors for the first day of school for the 1989-90 school year on Monday, Aug. 21 for all students enrolled in grades 7-12 from 8:15 a.m. to 2 p.m. A full day of classes is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 22 from 8:15 a.m. to 3 p.m.

New students in grades 9-12 will attend orientation on Wednesday, Aug. 16 from 9:30 a.m. to noon and will meet with the administration and the school counselor, Mrs. Jo Stajdel. The students will review their schedules for the coming year and become familiar with the school routine and activities.

Coast Episcopal is a college preparatory school and the curriculum is designed to challenge the students to excel according to their interests and talents, said principal Linda McCulloch.

To enhance the already strong math curriculum the school is including Algebra III in the course offerings on the high school level. Study skills and computer courses have been added to the seventh and eighth grade classes, said McCulloch.

Members of the 1989-90 Coast Episcopal High School faculty include Madelyn Taylor, English; Janet Young, math and chemistry; Dr. S. L. Sabharwal, science; Reta Ridling, art and drama; Karola Williams, German; Rebecca Boudreaux, Spanish, Clyde LeBlanc, Latin and French; Kanta Sabharwal, math; and Sandy Cazier, science and English.

New faculty members are Jack Hutchison, physical education and football coach; Lyn Robey, librarian; Diane Page, social studies; and Bill Jenkins, computers.

Kyle Bennett will serve as Christian Education director dividing his time between both the high school and Coast Episcopal Elementary School in Bay St. Louis.

He will teach Bible and Christian Living classes and act as a resource person for the faculty. Outreach and community service projects for the school will be under his direction.

To celebrate Coast Episcopal Schools' 40th anniversary and the start of the new school year, the students and faculty invite the parents and friends of the school to join in a Communion Service led by Rev. Bronson Bryant, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church at 11:30 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 21. Immediately following the service, the PTO will provide a picnic lunch for everyone.

Coast Episcopal High School is located on Espy Avenue in Pass Christian. Applications for enrollment are still being taken. For more information call 452-9442.

Make school lunches healthy and exciting

School lunches should be more than just enough to get students by until a hot, home-cooked meal is available. They should be well-balanced and can actually be exciting.

According to a national survey, children who buy a hot lunch at school generally have a more nutritious lunch than children who bring their lunch.

For those who prefer not to buy their lunches, a little extra planning and effort can make the lunch more nutritious and more exciting for the hungry student.

The most important consideration for "brown-bagging" is to follow the basic dietary guidelines for a well-balanced meal, said Nelda Starks, nutrition education specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Following the guidelines mean choosing foods that are higher in fat, sugars or sodium with other foods containing less of these components.

"Use a variety of foods from the major food groups," Starks said. "Select fruit or fruit juices, vegetables or vegetable juices, enriched breads or pastas, lean meat and lowfat milk, cheese or yogurt."

Fresh fruits, vegetables and lean meat and poultry are low in sodium. Avoid or limit processed meats that tend to be higher in fat and sodium. Fruits, vegetables and whole-grain breads are foods high in dietary fiber and good choices for lunches.

"Begin to improve lunches by letting your child help with the food shopping and preparing the lunch," Starks said. "Encourage the variety of foods for a balanced meal and to break up the monotony."

Starks said to keep sandwiches simple—such as sliced turkey instead of turkey salad—especially if your child objects to mixtures. Choose and prepare foods that are appropriate for your child's age. Sliced fruit may be better for younger children, while whole fruit will be appropriate for older children.

The nutritionist said desserts and snacks for class breaks can perk up a lunch sack, but these extras also can be low in fiber and high in fat, sodium, sugars and calories. Substitute traditional snack foods with fresh fruits such as apples or grapes, or a small amount of natural Swiss cheese and whole-grain crackers or lower fat cookies and crackers including graham crackers, gingersnaps, fig bars or melba toast.

Food safety must be a consideration when bagging perishable sandwich meats. Starks recommended enclosing a can of refrigerant or frozen fruit drinks to keep foods cooler.

Starks said following the dietary guidelines doesn't mean eliminating favorite foods, but it does mean planning ahead to balance foods that are higher in fat, sugars or sodium with the other foods packed in the lunch.

Guidelines for free, reduced lunches,

The State Department of Education announced the United States Department of Agriculture income guidelines for free and reduced price meals served under the school lunch, school breakfast, food distribution and child care food programs.

Families with children who are unable to pay the full price of the meals are encouraged to apply for benefits.

Applications and instructions for applying will be sent home with each student during registration or on the first day of school. To apply for the meal benefits, a household should fill out the application and return it to the school or center.

Additional copies of the application are available at the administrative office of each facility.

For the school/center officials to determine eligibility, the household must report income information or provide a food stamp or AFDC case number. If the child receives AFDC payments or is a member of a food stamp household, the parent or guardian only has to provide the name of child, food stamp or AFDC case number, and sign the application.

Other applicants must report the total household income and each amount and source of income received by each household member.

In order for income applicants to be approved, the household must also provide the following on the application: the names of all household members; the social security numbers of all adult household members or an indication that the adult does not have a social security number; and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data. The information provided may be verified at any time during the year by school/center or program officials.

Households are required to report increases in household income of over $50 per month of $600 per year and decreases in household size. Also, if a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size increases, the household should contact the school.

Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price or free meals if the household's income falls at or below the levels shown in the income scales. Households may apply for benefits at any time during the year as circumstances change.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for meal benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for meal benefits for them, the household should contact the school/center for more information.

Each school/center has a copy of the approved free and reduced meal policy. The policy indicates who is responsible for determining eligibility. The determining official is, in most instances, the principal, the food service supervisor, or the center director.

Each school/school district/center has an individual named as the hearing official. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of the determining official may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

Parents wishing to make a formal appeal may make a request either orally or in writing to the hearing official. The school/center office or the superintendent's office staff can provide you the name, address and phone number of the hearing official.

THE MOST IMPORTANT LETTERS WHEN IT COMES TO DRUGS

Teaching your children the ABC's is fine, but you also need to teach them about drug abuse and the special importance of the letters "NO." Teach them the drug alphabet early in life, and help them from becoming another statistic in America's fastest growing disease—drug and alcohol addiction. Let them learn their ABC's in school, but teach them their "NO'S" at home.

Business technology training available at Hancock Vo-Tech

Pearl River Community College/Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center, located adjacent to Stennis International Airport, has developed a secretarial training program which is convenient to the residents of Hancock County and to others who have children in surrounding schools.

"This program provides advanced secretarial training to students in nine short months at a price which is very inexpensive in comparison to today's college costs," said Arnell Cuevas, business technology instructor.

Registration will be held on Friday, Aug. 18 for individuals who wish to enroll in full-time and part-time college level business technology training.

Students will attend class for 18 hours per week. Schedules are arranged for the convenience of students with classes beginning at 8:30 each morning and ending at 1 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and 11:15 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

This year's program will provide students the opportunity to receive training in various facets of office work. Students will begin the program by developing basic skills through classes in business math and business English.

Students will also work to develop proficiency in typewriting skills and will acquire extensive skill using database, spread sheet, and word processing software packages; and will earn basic computer programming techniques.

Additional skills in machine transcription, accounting, letter writing and office procedures, will prepare the student for many local secretarial positions.

The business technology curriculum includes the following courses: typewriting (two semesters), business English, business mathematics, business communications, introduction to accounting, office procedures, machine transcription, records management, professional development, information processing, and word processing.

Individuals who satisfactorily complete the two-semester (nine-month) program will be awarded a certificate of proficiency during annual graduation exercises in May at the main campus in Poplarville.

Graduates will be qualified for employment as secretaries, word processors, or other general office positions. Students may also transfer hours earned at the Hancock County campus to the Poplarville campus and complete the required coursework to receive the two-year associate degree.

Individuals interested in the business technology program should contact the Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center as soon as possible. Financial aid is available for students who need help in this area. For further information, call the center at 467-3568.

Immunization records must be complete

As back-to-school time draws nearer, parents need to make sure children are protected from such childhood diseases as polio, diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), tetanus, measles, mumps, and rubella. This means getting children immunized.

The Mississippi State Department of Health recommends starting immunizations when an infant reaches two months of age, and state law requires children to be immunized before they start school.

A child entering kindergarten must have either a temporary compliance certificate that proves he has received his first series of shots, or a permanent compliance certificate that verifies all shots plus the booster have been given.

Any child who has previous shot records from another state should bring them to the health department.

Children starting first grade need a permanent compliance certificate.

Shots required to enter school are five DPT/Td shots, four OPV vaccinations and one shot each of measles, mumps, and rubella vaccine. Some shots are also required for college students.

Diphtheria/pertussis/tetanus (DPT/Td) vaccine prevents diphtheria, which causes a wide variety of symptoms; tetanus (lockjaw), which effects the muscular system; and pertussis, more commonly known as whooping cough.

The oral polio vaccine (OPV), given by mouth, prevents the crippling disease, polio. The recommended schedule for the vaccine is at two months, four months, 15 months and four to six years.

The mumps, measles and rubella (MMR) shot is recommended when a child reaches 15 months.

Parents are encouraged to avoid the back-to-school rush and get children immunized now. A local physician or the Hancock County Health Department should be contacted for more information.

Shots are provided at the health department Monday through Thursday between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Hancock parents are invited to meet staff

Parents are invited to be a part of staff development on Aug. 18 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Hancock North Central Elementary and Hancock North Central High School, Charles B. Murphy Elementary and Gulfview Elementary will welcome parents and supply necessary information concerning students.

Teachers will use the morning as 'work time' to prepare information for parents on topics discussed in the student handbook such as homework, discipline, attendance, rules and overall goals for school year 1989-90.

"We believe a partnership between parents and teachers can provide positive attitudes and behaviors in children. Please give support and participation. It can only benefit your children," commented Terry Randolph, superintendent of the school system.
